PTCO Day Round-Up

PTCO Day is just around the corner, and PTCO has a "bus-load" of events to keep the entire community busy and entertained throughout the day. This year's program will include a "moonwalker," pony rides, face painting, "bungee running," a car wash, the annual art contest, food, information and specialty booths, and unlimited socializing, learning and fun! Mark ALL calendars for May 1, 10 am - 6 pm in KRC and around the campus. More information will be announced in upcoming CB's.

Teacher of the Year Nomination

The ISD community is invited to submit suggestions for ISD's nominee for the 1995 Indiana State Teacher of the Year to the Superintendent's office.

Each "school corporation" must select a single staff member for the competition. Each year one Hoosier educator receives the coveted award, which includes $1,000 cash, a new set of encyclopedias, and the recognition of community and peers.

A pamphlet detailing the necessary steps in the nominating process is available for review in the Superintendent's office.

Olin Livesay Scholarship Fund

The Olin L. Livesay Scholarship Fund is accepting applications for scholarships. The fund awards more than one thousand, five hundred twenty-five (1,525) scholarships each year, ranging in amounts from $250 to $25,000. The scholarships are open to high school seniors. Awards are based on the family's ability to finance educational expenses and on the applicant's overall potential for success. The deadline for applications is June 1, 1994. To apply, contact Dan Stutler at (317) 924-4374 TTY/Voice.

Thought for the Week:

"If Deaf children are perceived as "flawed hearing" children, the chances of learning English, and of achieving harmonious relationships with hearing people are slim.

If Deaf children are perceived as a non-English speaking minority, the mastery of English as a second language and positive relationships with hearing people will follow."

Everyone Welcome!

Indiana State Department of Health Brochure

The Indiana State Department of Health has developed a brochure entitled, Your Health - Our Heartbeat. The brochure includes a Mission Statement, Vision Statement, and Critical Success Factors. Copies of the brochure are available in ISD's Visitor and Information Center, Room 122, Alumni Hall.

Kudos

Park Tudor teacher Debbie March donated $249 to ISD in response to ISD students' successful participation in a reading contest. The money will be deposited in the school's "D" accounts and used to directly benefit ISD students

ISD appreciates Ms. March's support and generosity in the future of our students.

Many thanks to Karl Wagner of Magic With A Smile who entertained K - 5 students March 16. Wagner's performance combined magic and humor with an important safety message. ISD appreciates Mr. Wagner's donation of both time and talent!

ISD Campus Security Officer Aaron Robinson graduates from the Indiana Law Enforcement Academy on Friday March 25. ISD congratulates Officer Robinson.

Thanks to Jodee Crace for volunteering to cover classroom duties for FSS staff members to attend a departmental retreat (the CB apologizes for omitting Jodee's name from the previous "Kudos.")

A BIG Thanks to Bill and Cherie Coffey for donating the stuffed animals to the 0-5 Program. Much appreciated!

Tutor Sought

An Indianapolis area ISD student is seeking a freshman level Math and English tutor (twice a week) for the summer. To apply or for additional information contact Diana Kendrick (317) 923-1030 TTY/Voice.

Transitions

Letting Go of the Old

Ann Titus, Transition Consultant

Think about the word "change." Most of us visualize the outcome or the new thing that will come about as the result of "change." William Bridges in his book Managing Transitions: Making the Most of Change suggests that in order for us to adapt to any change we first must "let go" of the old. This "letting go" is the first phase of transition.

It may seem odd that the starting point for a transition is an ending. Often we expect ourselves and others to accept new things immediately when a change takes place. In reality, the first phase of adapting to change is letting go of the old situation and leaving it behind. We are not able to fully adapt to the new if we have not let go of the old.

Suppose that you have just taken a new job. It is a great job with a higher salary and better hours. The change is positive. Still, you have some trouble getting used to it. You find that you miss your friends at the old job. You feel unsure about your skills and if you can handle the old responsibilities. These feelings are natural. Even though you have found a better job, you have given up your group of friends at the old job. You have given up the comfortable feeling of knowing you had the skills for the old job. You have to "let go" of the old reality and your old identity.

Often, when people have a hard time adjusting to change, we assume that they do not want the change. Bridges explains that this may not be true. More often when people find it hard to adjust to something new they are having difficulty letting go. They may want the change and support it but still hurt because of the loss associated with the change. People may actually grieve the loss of the old ways. This grief may cause them to deny that the change will really take place. The grief may cause them to get angry. Sometimes that anger can lead to sabotage where they try to do things to prevent the new from taking place. Sometimes people in the grief process will be very sad or depressed or have high levels of anxiety and nervousness. They may seem disoriented. It is important to remember that this grief is not because people cannot accept the new. Rather, they have a hard time letting go of the old ways.

What happens if people do not "let go"? What happens if they continue to grieve about loss of the old ways? Often people who have not let go or dealt with the feelings of loss, begin to overreact to even the smallest of changes. Suppose that you move to the new job but you still miss your friends and feel uncomfortable. Those feelings keep getting worse and worse. Then one day you find out that your office will be changed. You get furious and write a nasty note to your boss. The whole situation gets blown out of proportion and before you know it, you are filing a grievance because your office is being changed. You have trouble adapting to that smaller change and overreact because you are still angry and sad and depressed about losing your friends at the old job. We often tend to overreact to little things when we have not "let go" of the old ways related to a larger change.

IN THE NEXT TRANSITIONS COLUMN:

Bridges assures us that "letting go" is a natural phase of transition. He suggests that the best way to help people let go of the old, is to talk about it. If people are going through a transition, we need to give them the opportunity to identify what they feel they will lose when the change takes place. By simply acknowledging the feelings and by discussing them, we can help people let go of the old. In the Transition Workshops at ISD, people discussed this "letting go" phase of transition. Participants listed many things that staff have to "let go" in the process of changing to a BIBI philosophy. In the next "Transitions" column, we will find out what the workshop participants said we must leave behind in order to become BIBI.

Student Employee of the Week

This week's Student Employee of the Week is Ernest Noel. Ernest works in the body shop at Speedway Mazda/Volkswagen - Subaru/Suzuki, located at 1930 West 16th street. Ernest's supervisor is his brother, Ron. Ernest began working at the body shop last summer and is getting really good at getting cars ready to paint, according to Ron. Ernest has to sand or "scuff" the old paint (so that new paint will stick). He must also tape where they don't want paint to touch. Ernest leaves for work at 10:45 am every day. Some days he works until 8:00 pm (or later if they have a rush job). He likes the work and the money but sometimes he misses school things like class meetings after school and "messaging" with some of his buddies.

Ernest, a senior, lives in Indianapolis. He likes his present job but thinks he may go to college and study to become a computer repair technician. He has talked about applying to NTID (National Technical Institute for the Deaf) in Rochester, New York or IVY TECH (Indiana Vocational Technical College) which has a branch campus in Indianapolis.

ISD wishes Ernest the best of everything in his future endeavors.

Staff Development News

Current Trends in Deaf Education

Dr. Jenny Singleton will teach "Special Education 409S," Current Trends in Deaf Education at the University of Illinois' Champaign-Urbana campus June 16-17, 23-24, July 1, and July 7-8 (these last two classes are likely to be rescheduled due to the NAD convention). This post-graduate course may be used in lieu of "SpEd 504," a Ball State requirement. Registration for two hours credit is $218, $406 for four hours. Deadline for sign-up is June 1. For additional information or registration forms contact Curriculum Planner Rachel Stone, Alumni Hall Room 225, (317) 924-4374 ext. 153 TTY.

The Attention Deficit Disordered Child & Adolescent

This workshop is being presented by John F. Taylor, PhD., a family psychologist and respected authority in this field who has three children with ADD. He is the author of the "Sharpening Your Counseling Skills" column in the journal PRACTICAL IDEAS FOR COUNSELORS. His twenty year practice has focused on emotionally and behaviorally disturbed children and adolescents, many of whom have ADD.

During the workshop Dr. Taylor will focus on how to solve the problems facing parents, siblings and teachers of ADD and ADHD children and adolescents. These techniques are usable by any professional in a position to assist these families. The workshop will be April 9 from 9:00 am - 5:00 pm at Methodist Hospital, Wile Hall. Registration is $35 per couple and $20 single. Coffee and donuts will be served.

Schools of Many Voices: Leadership in a Multicultural Society II

During this two day conference 25 different workshops will be offered. Each will address one aspect of multi-cultural education. This event will be held April 27 -28 at the Indiana Government Center South. Registration is $60. It would be wonderful to have someone from each department represented at this outstanding conference! Each department has a copy of the full program.

Hearing and Vision Evaluation for Young Children: A Functional Approach

This workshop is designed for teachers of preschool children who have vision and/or hearing impairments, orientations specialists and other related service personnel, as well as parents of children with vision and/or hearing impairments. This workshop will take place April 21 from 8:00 am - 4:15 pm and April 22 from 8:00 am - 11:55 am. Registration is $40 for professional and $25 for a parent.

Supporting the Success of a Diverse Student Body

This presentation is sponsored by the School of Education Annual Alumni Conference. The conference will focus on the things that are currently facing Indiana's public schools. It will take place at University Place Conference Center on April 14 from 8:15 am - 3:45 pm. Registration is $60 prior to April 11 and $75 after that date.
